Chaos graph of the sound the tide at wreck beach makes coming in. Long, straight lines are uniform sounds, though some crescendo as they move audibly from right (my) to left. The waves are smaller, little gurgles heard at the periphery. $\circ$ are wellings.
At first I used my highlighting crayon, beginning at the top of the page & working down towards my ear. $\circ$ are wellings.
But the marks which I couldn't get the flourishes or dynamics in the page being small, I couldn't get the flourishes or dynamics So I tried again. I felt I was creating w/ my hand.
Page where "top" ~~was~~ marks for effects using the whole or turning over their limit. Further away are crashing, marked by "top" & sounds closer appear at the bottom nearer to me.
(next time I'll use both hands at once
loudness was marked in my intensity)

greeny - oh bright! - greeny slow, some singing the lurch forward then swaying as we get on the way, then as slowing down jitters in my feet.

when in touch on narrow place - jitters to begin, slow.

always punctuated by tuck-tuck sound of rail chatters / new / connecting
